From the Vermont Watchman.

Extract of a letter from a young gentleman in the county of Muskingum, (Ohio), dated 28th October, 1816, to his friend in this town.

"I am now just on the eve of starting on a tour through the state of Indiana; perhaps the Illinois and Missouri Territories. I am extremely well pleased with Ohio; but somebody has 'got on top' of every first rate situation, and you might as well attempt to purchase a seat in Paradise as one of these—but such an one I mean to have, if I have to trample the whole earth, for I find, in every part of the country, such possessions put people at their ease, and make them flourishing and happy, as to worldly goods. I have seen seed time and harvest, summer and winter, which, to me, seemed mild in the extreme. The summer was much colder than I expected, there was about one week freezing weather in April, three frosts in May; the 7th, 11th, and 17th June, and 15th and 17th July, were frosts. In fact no month has been exempted. Fruit has been much injured. All kinds of grain come in pretty well. I have been in Marietta, seat of Washington county, Zanesville, Mount Vernon, Newark of Licking, Mount Vernon of Knox, Mansfield, of Richmond, and Coshocton, of Choshorton county. Marietta's natural situation is beautiful, but too low; and of course overflows. This and the surrounding sterility, has brought it to a stand. About sixty miles up the Muskingum, stand Zanesville, a town of about three hundred houses generally small, and including a court house and jail, a market house, well supplied, a methodist meeting house, and flint glass factory. There is a bank called the Muskingum bank; two printing offices from which two weekly papers are issued and book binding carried on, and a nail factory. Opposite this stands Putnam, which contains an academy and a cotton factory. The two towns carry on almost every kind of mechanical business. Zanesville has about 25 stores. Putnam 7. Between these two towns there is a considerable fall above which a dam is thrown across around which, and the fall, a canal is digging by a company styled the Zanesville canal and manufacturing company, who intend to manufacture iron, in all its various branches, cotton, wool, hemp, flax, paper, &c. &c. there are two bridges connecting these two towns, one of which is so constructed you may cross lacking or the Muskingum from or to either side of Licking, which is a western branch of it emptying in her. Up this 4 miles, is a large and furnace pretty extensively carried on by Dillon and Son. At the forks of the Muskingum, between 30 and 40 miles from Zanesville, stands Coshocton with a most motley set of inhabitants.

At the forks of Licking, stands Newark, a thriving little town, Mount Vernon and Mansfield are very new, but thriving. Richland is the handsomest and most fertile of any County I have been in, but land is from 2.50 to 3.00 dollars per acre. This and all other parts in the vicinity of the lake, will be very valuable when the grand canal from Hudson to Erie gets opened. The steam navigation is rapidly improving. The other parts of the state, the parts I have been in, are generally well watered and healthy, save Licking county, the water is not good in many parts of the county. The face of the country is handsome enough. I have not seen the richest soil nor the most beautiful, but all things considered perhaps equal to any. Money is brought into the country by emigrants and paid for lands. Much of this, however, goes to the U. S. treasury, and by drovers and paid for horses, hogs, cattle, and numerous other articles and carried out by the merchants, so it circulates. Grindstones found in plenty, also lime stone some salt is made from springs in different parts of the state, but not sufficient to supply the demand, some is brought from Onondago, by way of the lakes, but by far the greatest quantities are brought from Kenhawa in Virginia, and is sold here now for 1.50 dollars per bushel, or 30 lbs.

The low lands look well, even when compared by the Deerfield meadows, uplands are good, bad and indifferent, but when I compare 25 miles, 50, 75, or 150 miles of any road I have travelled in this state, with the same distance in any other place I have been in, I am pleased. All kinds of grain come to great perfection with ease. Grass potatoes and flax, all behind those in Vermont, though they do pretty well. Good horses, cows and oxen are more valuable than in Vermont. Common ones, and young are not so valuable, but are raised with about half the expence. But they die considerably with the murrain. Sheep are subject to the rot, but do pretty well. Bar Iron is 12 dollars per cwt. Castings 240 dollars per ton. Flax 82 cents per lb. Cotton is now about 50 cents. (I will state extremes.) Beef is from 3 to 6 per lb. Pork from 3 to 6 cents per lb. Corn and Oats from 25 to 30 cents per bushel, from 15 to 40 bushels from an acre, from 200 to 10 of corn, Wheat from 14 to 30 and upwards; per bushel, leather about two shillings per pound, hick shoes 2.50 dollars thin do 3 dollars, young Hays 8 dollars per lb. coffee 10 cts Hays, as with you, not much home manufactured Cloth for sale, blacksmithing, tailoring, cabinet work, and in fact almost all kinds of mechanical work. dear, dry goods are generally cheap, than with you when I was there. have fallen much since I came here.

As to the people the first settlers were a mixed multitude from all the other American States and most of the European Kingdoms composed of adventurers, slaves, fools, unfortunate, and some of the best and enterprising men. There are many who have always lived on the frontiers, and for a connecting link between savage and civilized life. The offspring of all have had their education for chance. Sojourners from every nation and clime under heaven with all the jarring ideas of civil policy which the different forms of government and government have been their teachers.

People of wealth and education flocking in from every quarter. Real schools are not sufficiently attended to. Second hand and second rate lands to be found on very reasonable terms. Farms are to be rented in plenty. One who hires as two thirds he finds and divides the gain in the bundle in a field, corn in the basket other things similar."

Extract from the log book of the schooner Billow, John Middleton, master, New Providence, of no previous sailing, lying at Crooked Island.

At 10 o'clock A. M. 12th October, a schooner standing over from long Island. At 2 P. M. manned the boat and went along side of her, and asked where we came from and who we were. Answer was made from New Providence and bound directly to the Billows boat was then manned with four hands from the stange which appeared to be a privateer, a lieutenant sent on board of the Billow, anchor inside of the French wells, the persons broke open all the trunks, and all the clothes of any value, and plundered the Billow of her provisions. On the return of the Boat to the privateer, the captain, whose name was Brown, and if water could be got at that place, it was told it might if he would examine the morning and report himself; when said he could not get it without doing and he immediately manned the Billow boat, taking one of her men, and went for water. In the mean time Captain Middleton was walking the privateer deck, and enquired from whence he came, and was told from Jamaica, was permission from the Admiral and merchants and a pass from the former, showing at the same time a paper purporting to be of that description to cross in search of a pirate that had plundered a vessel belonging to Mr Johnston, first lieutenant on board the privateer. Captain Middleton asked Captain Brown of the privateer what day it was, and he replied he did not know, but asked the clerk, who said it was Friday, when in fact it was Sunday. Captain Middleton observed to Captain Brown that he could not consider himself a prisoner while the English flag was flying at the mast head and the Carthagenean flag was then produced.

Captain Brown asked about his Majesty's vessels, and on being told that one of them the Bermuda, was expected there that day, he answered there was no fear of that as they were all in port eating fresh beef. He likewise said that the privateer was formerly the American cruiser Soap Dragon, as now loaded with a valuable cargo of dry goods and specie, and on a box lying on the deck he directed Captain Middleton to go down telling him, it was of more value than the Billow and Cargo. There was a black boy on board, which Johnston said he got from Pictou, of St. Domingo. They said they had taken 5 prizes, the kept three log books, and were bound for Baltimore. They also said that Pictou had lost his fleet in a gale of wind, they made particular enquiry about some gun on Long Island—Next morning they got under weigh, and his Majesty's big Bermuda passed them a little to windward, without taking notice of the vessel.

Description of the Privateer, A long black schooner with a small white streak, flush deck upwards of 150 tons, 2 guns and 35 men; tall main top sail, small square fore top sail, large lower sails, bowsprit, lying very low in the water.

ALEXANDRIA.
MONDAY, JANUARY 20.
FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT
AT WASHINGTON.

January 17.

The House of Representatives in committee, once again, yesterday, took the compensation bill into consideration, and Mr. Randolph's proposed amendment of which I gave you an account in my yesterday's letter, was under discussion almost the whole day. Mr. Hulbert, of Massachusetts, made a long and argumentative speech in which he peremptorily denied that the clamor that had been raised against the increased compensation, was the real voice of the people. It began in the greatest city in the Union, he said, where for the purpose of producing an influence on the election then about to take place, a party meeting was called, and resolutions were passed, in which the compensation law was denounced as a most profligate act, and ascribed to the opposite party. That resolution of course found its way into the newspapers, and about the same time the very same game was played by the other party who, after exhibiting the compensation law in the blackest colors possible, endeavored to fasten it on their adversaries also. The same practices took place in most other parts of the Union about the election time, and thus the whole people, however opposite in party, concurred in vilifying this law; and out of those party artifices arose an universal clamor which was made subservient to mutual party accusation and calumny. Mr. Hulbert protested against the deceptive capriciousness practised upon the people by pretending to bow to their opinions, and he drew a picture of the degraded attitude in which Congress must appear to the very people themselves, if in compliance with their temporary ill-judged clamor they should repeal this law. It was but a few months ago, that after a long and laborious discussion, and on mature deliberation, they had made the law—they had at that time foreseen that it would agitate the people and probably be censured by them, and that (very probably) did not deter them; so that there was no reason now for repeating it which did not then operate against the passing of it. If then they should hasten to repeal it for the short residue of this session, he said they would have touched the bottom of humiliation (to use the words of Burke) and brought up their head covered with "and"—the people would ascribe it to fear and an overweening lust for popularity, and be persuaded they were governed by those rather than by firmness and wisdom. As to his constituents he told them that as he had already voted, so he would vote again, if necessary, for the measure; and he reminded the house that he had voted on every question uniformly in favor of it, as well when the question was taken by ayes and noes as when it was not. He told his constituents, too that to repeal the law was the last act he should do, to disgrace himself, and the consequence was that they unanimously nominated him to represent them. As to Mr. Randolph's proposition to refund the money received under the law, he would only say, that when he was convinced that he had committed theft or robbery, he would vote for it; but not till then, and he compared the proposition to a circumstance lately related in the newspapers, of giving an emetic to a robber to make him disgorge money he had stolen and swallowed for concealment.

Mr. Randolph's motion was negatived, and the bill was reported to the house.

January 18.

A bill for organizing, classifying and arming the militia was yesterday read twice and referred to a committee of the whole for Monday. I mention this, as I apprehend it to be a measure that will attract a great share of public attention and produce much discussion in Congress.

The compensation law came before the House and drew forth discussion. The question was on concurring with the committee of the whole in filling the blanks with six dollars. Mr. Calhoun made a very able, a masterly speech upon the occasion, in which he reproached and exposed the mischievous consequences to the constitution, the House of Representatives, and even the people themselves of members yielding implicit obedience to the instructions of their constituents, which was the ground assumed on this occasion by the adversaries of the compensation law of last session. That will of the people which created the constitution, he would obey, and while he obeyed that he could ob-bey no other; for the people had no right to instruct that house: and such practices, if submitted to, would destroy legislation. He said that the whole doctrine of instructions originated in the feudal system, and was unknown to the ancient pure republics; and he affirmed that if any one of the gentlemen there present who talked of repealing their own deliberate act, merely because their constituents instructed them to do it, were told that Aristides and Phocion received and were governed by instructions, that gentleman would set them down as cheats and imposters. He then adverted to the merits of the case and demonstrated the good policy of giving to the members of that house a dignified standing, by using all possible means to attract talents, character and activity from all quarters, and to throw open the doors to genius and virtue. Repulsing them by penury, he said, would be destructive economy. Talents were, in this country, property, and in order to draw them from private to legislative pursuits, they must be rewarded. If a seat in that house was inferior to many of the offices of the house, what became of the theory of the constitution? The possessor in order to reach the height proportioned to his pretensions, would let himself be taken by the Executive hand, and becoming a favorite, where would be at last the accountability of the executive. That gratifying power, he said, ought to be destroyed, and a barrier to be interposed between the two branches. The independence of the members of that house was the only barrier, and therefore he still thought as he did the last session, that 1500 dollars a year was too little, and that 2500 would put the house where it ought to be.

Mr. Wheaton made a very shrewd, ingenious, and humorous speech—he have rarely heard humour more gracefully or more sarcastic. Alluding to Mr. Randolph's proposition to refund the excess of compensation received over and above the six dollars a day, he said that if the house had with polluted hands taken the property of the people, they ought not only to refund the excess, but as censured by them, and that (very probably) did not deter them; so that there was no reason now for repeating it which did not then operate against the passing of it. If then they should hasten to repeal it for the short residue of this session, he said they would have touched the bottom of humiliation (to use the words of Burke) and brought up their head covered with "and"—the people would ascribe it to fear and an overweening lust for popularity, and be persuaded they were governed by those rather than by firmness and wisdom. As to his constituents he told them that as he had already voted, so he would vote again, if necessary, for the measure; and he reminded the house that he had voted on every question uniformly in favor of it, as well when the question was taken by ayes and noes as when it was not. magnificent saloon, about 20 feet long and 19 broad, finished on all sides with mahogany, inlaid with other ornamental wood. The settles of the saloon are of splendid workmanship; the backs are shaped like the ancient throne, and the seats are covered with crimson silk velvet bordered with a very wide edging of gold lace. Two splendid mirrors, standing at either end and a magnificent chandelier, suspended in the centre of the saloon, give a richness of effect to it, not easily surpassed. Instead of births on the sides of this hall there are closets for the tea equipage and suit of plate for the dinner table, which is finished in a high style of elegance. The after cabin contains sleeping accommodations for the under officers of the vessel. The owners and captain's state rooms are very commodious. The conveniences for the kitchen and steward's apartments may be considered models in their way. There are aqueducts in all parts of the vessel which require them.

The intention of Mr. Crowninshield, we understand, is to proceed in the first instance to the Western Islands, thence through the Straights of Gibraltar, and following the windings of the left coast of the Mediterranean, will touch at every principal city on the route, which will be, round the Island of Sicily, up the Gulf of Venice to Trieste, along the coast of Albania and the Morea, through the Grecian Archipelago to the Dardanelles; if permitted by the Turkish authorities he will proceed through the Sea of Maruora to Constantinople, thence coasting along the ports of the Black Sea, to the Sea of Azov, he will return by the way of the Isle of Cyprus, up on the south side of the Mediterranean, stopping at Acre, Jerusalem, and Alexandria, on his way, and sailing by the coast of the desert, to that of the Barbary state. Emerging from the straits he will proceed through the British Channel and North Sea, up the Baltic to Petersburg, thence along the coast of Norway to the North Cape, and perhaps into the White Sea; from this point he may go to Spitzbergen and thence crossing an immense ocean to the coast of South America, touching at various ports, he will complete the tour of his destination, and arrive at Salem. It is much to be desired that a gentleman of scientific attainments, historical research, and literary taste may accompany Mr. Crowninshield in his expedition. The multiplied objects of rational curiosity, which will be presented to the traveller, on such a tour, would afford materials which if well digested and arranged, would do credit to the country and confer permanent celebrity upon a voyage, which without such a narration, will dwindle into a tale of idle curiosity and final insignificance.

NEW-YORK, Jan 14.

By the arrival this morning, of the Schooner Felicity, capt Smart, in 20 days from St. Thomas, we learn, that Commodore Bryan, having under his command one Brig and two Schooners, with Gen. Bolivar and his troops on board, sailed for Comma, about the 4th of December. It was expected, that Gen Bolivar, on his arrival on the Main, would be appointed commander in chief of the Patriotic forces. An intelligent Spanish gentleman who had just arrived at St. Thomas from a visit to the Main, stated that Sir Gregor M'Gregor, at the head of the Patriotic Troops, had recently defeated the Royalists in several engagements.

JAMES KENNEDY & SON,

BOOKSELLERS, KING STREET,
Have just received from LEES PATENT MEDICINE Store, No. 46 Maiden Lane, N. York
J FRESH SUPPLY

Of the following genuine Medicines,
For the prevention and cure of Bilious and Malignant Fevers, is recommended.

Hahn's Anti-Bilious Pills

THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings, in several parts of the West Indies, and the Southern & Middle States, particularly in N. York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Petersburg, Richmond, Norfolk, Edenton, Wilmington, Charleston, and Savannah. The testimony of a number of persons at each of the above places can be adduced, who have reason to believe, that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives, when in the most alarming circumstances.

Parts of this conclusive nature speak more in favor of a medicine than columns of pompous eulogy, founded on mere assertion.

It is not, indeed, presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason to believe, that a dose of these Pills, taken once in every two weeks, during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventative; and further, that in the earlier stages of those diseases, their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases attended with danger, and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation, and of every age.

They are excellently adapted to cases of superabundant bile, prevent its morbid secretions—in restoring, or augmenting the appetite—to produce a free perspiration, and thereby prevent colds which is so often the result of constipation. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance—they are celebrated for removing habitual constipation—nervousness of the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing diarrhoea attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

HAMILTON'S WORM DESTROYING LOZENGES.

Which have cured an immense number of persons of both sexes, of every age, and in every situation, of various dangerous complaints arising from worms, and from obstructions or looseness in their stomach and bowels.

This medicine bears no analogy whatever to others of similar titles, so commonly complained of, as operating with violence; on the contrary, a particular excellence of this remedy is its being suited to every age and perfectly inoffensive, and is also mild in its operation, cannot injure the most delicate pregnant lady or the tenderest infant of a week old, should no worms exist in the body; but will, without pain or griping, cleanse the stomach and bowels, of whatever is foul or offensive, and thereby prevent the production of worms, and many fatal disorders. The lozenges are particularly efficacious in carrying off all gross humors and eruptions, feverish and bilious complaints, and are the safest and most judicious purgative that can be used on any occasion.

DESCRIPTION OF WORMS.

And the symptoms by which they are known:

Worms which infest the human body are chiefly of four kinds, viz.—The Terebra, or large round worm; the Ascarides, or small man-worm; the Cucurbitina, or short, flat, white worm; and lastly, the Tania, or tape-worm, so called from its resemblance to tape. This is often many yards long, and is full of joints. It is most hurtful and most difficult to remove.

Among the symptoms attending worms are—disagreeable breath, especially in the morning; bad and corrupted gums; itching in the nose, and about the seat of convulsions, epileptic fits, and sometimes privation of speech; starting and grinding of the teeth in sleep; irregular appetite, sometimes loathing food, and sometimes voracious; purging, with shiny & foetid stools; vomiting; large and hard belly; pains and sickness at the stomach; slow fever, with small and irregular pulse; a dry cough; excessive thirst; sometimes pale and unhealthy countenance, and sometimes the face coated and dashed.

Persons afflicted with any of the above symptoms, should have immediate recourse to Hamilton's Worm Destroying Lozenges, which have been constantly attended with success, in all complaints similar to those above described.

A dose of this medicine given occasionally during the warm season, will effectively prevent the vomiting and purging of chills—a dreadful disease, which annually destroys the hands of the inferior part of our citizens.

It is the most mild and safe fair remedy known, and has restored to health and strength a great number who in an advanced stage of this fatal complaint. Particular and plain instructions are given for every part of the necessary treatment in such cases. Children generally take this medicine with eagerness; having a pleasing appearance, and an agreeable taste.

ROBBERY.

On the night of the 5th of December 1816, the Exchange Office of the subscriber, Bridge street, Georgetown, from appearances by a false key, was robbed of the following property, in specie, consisting of dollars, about 200 dollars; bank notes, mostly three dollar notes of the bank of Washington, and some small tickets, together about $50 dollars, a one pound note of the bank of England, and one hundred and sixty four lottery tickets as per numbers below. The lottery tickets had been of no use to the persons taking them, and an attempt to pass them would only lead to a detection, it is therefore hoped that the person or persons who took them, will return them to the subscriber through the Post Office at Georgetown. A liberal Reward will be paid by the subscriber for any information that may lead to the discovery of the persons or a recovery of the property. All keepers of lottery offices in the United States will please to keep a list of the numbers of the following tickets, as it may lead to a discovery of the theft.
